For those who yawned this morn ing and had caustle things to say of the men who framed the new day light saving act:

Consider the weather man. Because of the new law the ob servers of the bureau are doing just twice the work of the days when an than thirty years the observations on which all the data of the bureau are made up have been taken at 8 a. m. When the new law was passed, C. F. Marvin, head of the Weather Bureau, decreed that not withstanding all that Congress has said on the matter, the observations should be taken in the usual way, so that the records of

WEATHER BUREAU Marked by Many Social Events

By JEAN ELIOT

Easter Monday, 1918, will be writ large in the social history of one of the most crowded seasons Washington has ever known. Not only were there the usual Easter balls-one at hour was a regular hour. For more the Marine Barracks under the auspices of the Woman's Army and Navy League, and the Dixle ball at the Willard with the members of the Woman's Army and Navy League as hostesses—but the evening was marked by a dinner party at the White House and a reception at the Corcoran Gallery of Art. Both the White House dinner which was small, intimate, and as in-formal as a function may be with the President and Mrs. Wilson as hosts and a foreign dignitary as guest of supply information at a certain time of the day.

So now two observations are taken where one was taken before. At 8 a. m. "summer time" the Weather Bureau makes one set of figures for the enlightenment of the public. One hour later—at 8 o'clock, which would be 8 o'clock if we were not saving the summer and saving the summer of the public. One hour later—at 8 o'clock, which would be 8 o'clock if we were not saving the summer of the public. One hour later—at 8 o'clock, which would be 8 o'clock if we were not saving the summer of the public. The President and Mrs Wilson attended the ball at the Marine Barracks, which was given for the bene-fit of the work the Army and Navy League carries on among the de-pendents of soldiers and seamen, their presence adding a fillip of interest to an unusually brilliant and successful ball. There was no White House "party," two aides, Col. Clarence Rid-ley and Lieut. Charlton E. Battle, alone accompanying the Chief Ex-ecutive and Mrs. Wilson.

The reception at the Corcoran Gal-lery was given by the trustees of the institution. The archbishop, with the others of the receiving line; Bishop Harding, Charles C. Glover, president of the board of trustees; Henry White former ambassador to France, and Brig: Gen. Charles McCawley, U. S. M. C., who made the presentations, stood in the atrium at the top of the Reading, who arrived with his Grace of York, held an impromptu reception, warmly greeting many of the acquaintances they have made since coming to Washington. In the offing hovered Mrs. Charles C. Create Gas, Sourness and Pain How to Treat

Medical authorities state that nearly nintenths of the cases of stemach trouble, Indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, gestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach and tot as some believe to a lack of digrestive juicea. The delicate stomach lining is britated, digrestion is delayed, and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digrestents are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digrestive aids and instead gas from any druggist a few ounces of Bluurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bluirated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milky is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take, and is the mest efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of fear of ladigastion.

Miss Hopkins' bridal gown is of brocaded satin combined with chiffon and beaded in pearls. It is made on severely simple lines, with the skirt cut short and a court train hung from the shoulders. She will wear a tulle vell, very long and full, held in place by a necklace of seed pearls, an heir by a necklace of seed pearls, an heir loom in the bride's family, arranged as a coronet. Wee clusters of orange blossoms will also be used to confine the vell. She will carry a grace-ful shower of lilles of the valley.

The bridesmaids will wear crisp organdie frocks in delicate rainbow tints, two pale blue, two pink, two yellow, two lavender, and two lettuce green. They are simply made, with quaint kerchiefs of white organdie and white organdie cuffs as the only systems. After standing in line for interminable ages, and being literally herded by a distinctly arbitrary group of ushers I had all the feeling of an immigrant at Elila Island, but when we finally did reach the head of the stairway and get a chance to greet his lordship, I decided that after all the grame was worth the candle.
